Sky Park Manor

circa 1964

Sky Park Manor was constructed in 1964 and was perhaps the first International Style structure in the City of Lincoln. The property has been maintained in excellent condition. In 2016, the present owners retained Berggren Architects' architectural historian, Janet Jeffries to research and submit the nomination for listing on the National Register of Historic Places. Janet's research led to many interesting discoveries as well as a wealth of artifacts still present in the structure and/or in storage.

The nomination was submitted to the fall review meeting of the State Historical Society's Board of Directors who unanimously approved it for submission to the National Park Service. Early in 2017, the word came back from Washington D.C. that the nomination had been approved and this fine structure is nowlisted in the Register.

Sky Park Manor, currently operating as Sky Park Apartments is the first International Style structure in Nebraska to be listed in the National Register of Historic Places.
